

Fascinating Play of Light in Mixed Hair

This year's fashion trends can not stay unnoticed at first sight. Everything has to glitter and shine: clothes, accessories, lips, eyes, bright skin, and of course your hair, for which this is of two-fold importance. It has to be shiny, well-cut and above all healthy.

You must be proud of your hair because it is the crown of your beauty. Your skin and likewise your hair is where your state of mind gets noticed. It is not a secret that the most frequent cause of hair loss is extremely stressful conditions, hormonal changes and drastic diets. However, the fact which is less known yet equally important is that damaged hair may also cause lack of contentment in one's sexual life.

If you are able to collect one hundred hairs altogether from your pillow, pullovers and combs in one day, you have a real problem. Hair has to be well taken care of inside and out. Especially during cold weather, your hair needs more care than ever.

High-quality professional products for home hair care will help you, as well as seeking professional care from quality hair designers – here is where it all begins. A good initial consultation with a hair designer is very important. You may avoid many problems with your damaged hair by choosing to you're your hair care done in a salon, using a high-quality mix or color and bearing in mind the recommendation of home hair care. There are professional products available on the market which can be used for mixing and coloring without any unpleasant side effects.

For quite a few years already, mixed hair has been standing at the sun; however, its real "time of your life" has just come this winter season. Mixed hair may enlarge the volume of your hairstyle;

add on to your hairs structure and make it brighter. What is more, you are no longer limited to being blond. You can try out honey, beige or light brown. It depends on how long you want to have the mix on. Our market offers professional products and techniques which do no harm your hair when mixing and coloring. Thanks to the varying color tones of every single hair on your head you will have a beautiful head of healthy shiny hair with a fascinatingly glossy effect, observing the light right in your very own hair. You should pay special attention to proper hair care, because mixed hair has a different structure and therefore requires different treatment than normal hair requires. Mixed hair is somewhat more sensitive and drier; you should use a masque or other special procedures after washing it, if possible, use a special product designed for mixed hair.

PROPER WASHING AND HAIR CARE ADVICE

Comb your hair well before you wash it. For best results, use a high-quality brush with natural bristles. Shampoo your hair gently; working it in its natural direction to make it foamy. Wash your hair either once or twice, depending on how dirt it is. Avoid tousling it when washing down. Dry your hair gently and apply the masque or conditioner allow it to work for a few minutes and wash carefully afterwards. Comb first with a thin comb and then after with a thicker comb. If you think your hair tousled while washing, use the masque and comb together, which is the easiest way to make it look good again.
